DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claims 16-25, are drawn to methods of analyzing target DNA by species comparison, classified in class 435, subclass 6.
  - II. Claims 26-29, are drawn to methods of identifying functionally important elements, classified in class 435, subclass 6.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions I and II are directed to related methods. The related inventions are distinct if the (1) the inventions as claimed are either not capable of use together or can have a materially different design, mode of operation, function, or effect; (2) the inventions do not overlap in scope, i.e., are mutually exclusive; and (3) the inventions as claimed are not obvious variants. See MPEP § 806.05(j). In the instant case, the inventions as claimed have materially different mode of operation. Invention I requires a reference and test genome and the use of 2 probe arrays, while, invention II requires only a known reference genome, making the inventions of different design. Invention I requires the use of arrays and genomes of two species, while invention II requires only a reference genome. Inventions I and II are thus mutually exclusive. A method of invention I, analyzing a target sequence from 2 species by use of 2 probe arrays, is not an obvious variant of identifying important functional regions, that is not drawn to arrays.

Art Unit: 1634

Furthermore, the inventions as claimed do not encompass overlapping subject matter and there is nothing of record to show them to be obvious variants.

Searching for methods of analyzing target sequences by species comparison would not necessarily produce art on methods of identifying functionally important elements, and vice versa. Searching the art for both would result in a search burden.

3. Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions require a different field of search (see MPEP § 808.02), restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.
